MESSAGE OF HIS HOLINESS POPE
FRANCIS FOR THE
109TH WORLD DAY
OF MIGRANTS AND REFUGEES 2023

FREE TO CHOOSE WHETHER TO MIGRATE OR TO STAY

Dear brothers and sisters!

The migratory flows of our times are the expression of a complex and varied phenomenon that, to be properly understood, requires a careful analysis of every aspect of its different stages, from departure to arrival, including the possibility of return. As a contribution to this effort, I have chosen to devote the Message for the 109th World Day of Migrants and Refugees to the freedom that should always mark the decision to leave one's native land.

"Free to leave, free to stay" was the title of an initiative of solidarity promoted several years ago by the Italian Episcopal Conference as a concrete response to the challenges posed by contemporary migration movements. From attentive listening to the Particular Churches, I have come to see that ensuring that that freedom is a widely shared pastoral concern.

"An angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream and said: 'Get up, take the child and his mother, and flee to Egypt, and remain there until I tell you; for Herod is about to search for the child, to destroy him'" (Mt 2:13). The flight of the Holy Family into Egypt was not the result of a free decision, nor were many of the migrations that marked the history of the people of Israel. The decision to migrate should always be free, yet in many cases, even in our day, it is not. Conflicts, natural disasters, or more simply the impossibility of living a dignified and prosperous life in one's native land is forcing millions of persons to leave. Already in 2003, Saint John Paul II stated that "as regards migrants and refugees, building conditions of peace means in practice being seriously committed to safeguarding first of all the right not to emigrate, that is, the right to live in peace and dignity in one's own country" (Message for the 90th World Day of Migrants and Refugees, 3).

"They took their livestock and the goods that they had acquired in the land of Canaan, and they came into Egypt, Jacob and all his offspring with him" (Gen 46:6). A grave famine forced Jacob and his entire family to seek refuge in Egypt, where his son Joseph ensured their survival. Persecutions, wars, atmospheric phenomena and dire poverty are among the most visible causes of forced migrations today. Migrants flee because of poverty, fear or desperation. Eliminating these causes and thus putting an end to forced migration calls for shared commitment on the part of all, in accordance with the responsibilities of each. This commitment begins with asking what we can do, but also what we need to stop doing. We need to make every effort to halt the arms race, economic colonialism, the plundering of other people's resources and the devastation of our common home.

"All who believed were together and had all things in common; they would sell their possessions and goods and distribute the proceeds to all, as any had need" (Acts 2:44-45). The ideal of the first Christian community seems so distant from today's reality! To make migration a choice that is truly free, efforts must be made to ensure to everyone an equal share in the common good, respect for his or her fundamental rights, and access to an integral human development. Only in this way will we be able to offer to each person the possibility of a dignified and fulfilling life, whether individually or within families. Clearly, the principal responsibility falls to the countries of origin and their leaders, who are called to practise a good politics – one that is transparent, honest, farsighted and at the service of all, especially those most vulnerable. At the same time, they must be empowered to do this, without finding themselves robbed of their natural and human resources and without outside interference aimed at serving the interests of a few. Where circumstances make possible a decision either to migrate or to stay, there is a need to ensure that the decision be well informed and carefully considered, in order to avoid great numbers of men, women and children falling victim to perilous illusions or unscrupulous traffickers.

"In this year of jubilee you shall return, every one of you, to your property" (Lev 25:13). For the people of Israel, the celebration of the jubilee year represented an act of collective justice: "everyone was allowed to return to their original situation, with the cancellation of all debts, restoration of the land, and an opportunity once more to enjoy the freedom proper to the members of the People of God" (Catechesis, 10 February 2016). As we approach the Holy Year of 2025, we do well to remember this aspect of the jubilee celebrations. Joint efforts are needed by individual countries and the international community to ensure that all enjoy the right not to be forced to emigrate, in other words, the chance to live in peace and with dignity in one's own country. This right has yet to be codified, but it is one of fundamental importance, and its protection must be seen as a shared responsibility on the part of all States with respect to a common good that transcends national borders. Indeed, since the world's resources are not unlimited, the development of the economically poorer countries depends on the capacity for sharing that we can manage to generate among all countries. Until this right is guaranteed – and here we are speaking of a long process – many people will still have to emigrate in order to seek a better life.

“For I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me, I was naked and you gave me clothing, I was sick and you took care of me, I was in prison and you visited me” (Mt 25:35-36). These words are a constant admonition to see in the migrant not simply a brother or sister in difficulty, but Christ himself, who knocks at our door. Consequently, even as we work to ensure that in every case migration is the fruit of a free decision, we are called to show maximum respect for the dignity of each migrant; this entails accompanying and managing waves of migration as best we can, constructing bridges and not walls, expanding channels for a safe and regular migration. In whatever place we decide to build our future, in the country of our birth or elsewhere, the important thing is that there always be a community ready to welcome, protect, promote and integrate everyone, without distinctions and without excluding anyone.

The synodal path that we have undertaken as a Church leads us to see in those who are most vulnerable – among whom are many migrants and refugees – special companions on our way, to be loved and cared for as brothers and sisters. Only by walking together will we be able to go far and reach the common goal of our journey.

Rome, Saint John Lateran, 11 May 2023

FRANCIS

PRAYER

God, Father Almighty,
grant us the grace to work tirelessly for justice, solidarity and peace, so that all your children may enjoy the freedom to choose whether to migrate or to stay.

Grant us the courage to denounce
all the horrors of our world, and to combat every injustice that mars the beauty of your children and the harmony of our common home.

Sustain us by the power of your Spirit,
so that we can reflect your tender love to every migrant whom you place in our path, and to spread in hearts and in every situation
the culture of encounter and of care.

REFLECTION ON POPE FRANCIS’ 109TH WORLD DAY OF MIGRANTS AND REFUGEES MESSAGE

“Free to choose whether to migrate or to stay”

Archbishop Christopher Prowse

Chairman

Bishops Commission for Evangelisation, Laity and Ministry

In this year’s World Day for Migrants and Refugees Message, Pope Francis focuses on the theme, “Free to choose whether to migrate or to stay.”

In the message he points out that for a healthy society there should always be “the freedom that should always mark the decision to leave one’s native land.”

Migration movements throughout the world continue unabated. The Pope insists that we should always be “ensuring that that freedom is a widely shared pastoral concern.”

We don't often reflect on this given our current understanding of refugees, but the Pope reminds us, once again, that there are Biblical examples of refugees. We think first of all of the experiences of the Holy Family - Jesus, Mary and Joseph. The Pope notes, "The flight of the Holy Family into Egypt was not the result of a free decision." He then insists that, "The decision to migrate should always be free, yet in many cases, even in our day, it is not." He reminds us of St John Paul II who stated that there should be a real commitment "to safeguarding first of all the right not to emigrate, that is, the right to live in peace and dignity in one's own country."

The other example given in the Pope's message is the flight of Jacob and all his offspring with him (Gen 46:6). Due to a grave famine in their land of origin, it necessitated them "to seek refuge in Egypt, where his son Joseph ensured their survival." We are all aware that "Migrants flee because of poverty, fear or desperation." The Pope makes the very important point that the country of origin must make a commitment which "begins with asking what we can do, but also what we need to stop doing." He cites the example of "the arms race, economic colonialism, the plundering of other people's resources and the devastation of our common home."

For migration to be truly a choice that is free, "efforts must be made to ensure to everyone an equal share in the common good, respect for his or her fundamental rights, and access to an integral human development." In anticipating the Jubilee Year of 2025, Pope Francis recalls the important dimension of jubilee years as "an act of collective justice." Here people are able to return to their places of origin with the intention of "the cancellation of all debts, restoration of the land, and an opportunity once more to enjoy the freedom proper to the members of the People of God." In other words the right not to be forced to immigrate is "the chance to live in peace and with dignity in one's own country."

The Pope concludes his reflection by reminding us again that "the migrant is not simply a brother or sister in difficulty, but Christ himself, who knocks at our door." We are to construct "bridges and not walls, expanding channels for a safe and regular migration."

FEEL WHAT I FEEL, AND FOR EFFECTIVE RESPONSES”

Over 7.6 million migrants are living in Australia, with 29.8% of the population being born overseas. In the past two decades, I have noticed a growing number of African communities emerging. People from Africa choose to move to Australia for various reasons, like searching for jobs or escaping civil wars driven by factors like race, religion, nationality, or social and political affiliation.

In the 2021 Census, I learned that more than 400,000 individuals living in Australia identified as having African origins, which makes up 1.6% of the Australian population and 5.1% of the overseas-born population. Interestingly, most of them (about 58%) are white South Africans, while 42% come from black African countries in sub-Saharan Africa.

However, people within these African communities have faced difficulties adapting to Australian society, partly due to the predominantly Anglo-Saxon culture here. When deciding to migrate, I understand that it's important to consider where to settle and how to connect with local community groups for a sense of belonging.

Welcoming Catholic Mass and dinners for refugees a pathway for connection with local community groups and employment

That is where the idea of welcoming Catholic Mass and dinners for refugees comes in. These events can serve as pathways for newcomers to connect with local communities and find employment opportunities. By participating in these gatherings within the Catholic Church, individuals can benefit from improved well-being, health, social networks, and stronger family relationships. On the other hand, it is also a way to address mental health issues, domestic violence, and family problems.

I have noticed that the Catholic Church in many African countries has introduced cultural elements like drumming, traditional songs, and dance into their Mass celebrations. This practice has inspired the creation of Kwetu projects in Australia, which I have led.

Kwetu project use music and drama-based social therapy to restore values, norms, and relationships, allowing for shared experiences and coping mechanisms.

These initiatives aim to make refugees feel at home during the process of evangelisation and therapy. Through music and drama-based social therapy, we are addressing issues like depression, anxiety, and loneliness.

As the coordinator of this effort, I am passionate about deepening African Church values in the diaspora. In many African communities, creative expression has shown its power in the healing process.

I have come to realise that creative arts and music therapy offered during a welcoming Catholic Mass can help restore emotional balance and reduce anxiety. The messages conveyed through these forms of expression can bring positive change to the lives of asylum seekers, the lonely, the chronically ill and the unemployed. Music's calming effects on the brain can potentially aid in restoring effective functioning and finding employment opportunities.

Focusing on youth models and vocational callings, the African Catholic Mass and welcome dinners can help newly arrived refugees adapt to Australian society while maintaining their cultural identity. This process involves host communities understanding the needs and worshipping culture of newcomers. Every year, I look forward to organising one African Mass and welcome dinner in each Australian diocese.

Here are some recommendations based on my insights:

1. Bishops from refugees' countries of origin should emphasise African Catholic Church values while ministering to the diaspora and should address discrimination.
2. Special attention should be given to hidden children among refugees, just like in my case.
3. The Church should involve refugees at all levels, not just for testimonies or fundraising.
4. The Church should play a role in reconciling refugees with affected communities.
5. Vocational training programs should be revised to align with societal dynamics.

It is important to understand that creating inclusive Church communities is crucial. By embracing diversity and offering equal opportunities, we can make refugees feel valued and empower them to contribute positively. Though there might be resistance from some African Church leaders, our perspective as refugees emphasises the importance of upholding these principles. Together, we can build a more inclusive and compassionate world.

Homily Notes for 109th World Day of Migrants and Refugees 2023

There are libraries of books written about different parenting strategies. One of the topics to consider is choice. Will the children be given options to choose between, or will that freedom come when they are older? Will the consequences of choices always be meted out fairly, or will parents be lenient under certain conditions? Each family will approach these questions differently, but in general parents hope that their children will grow to make good choices that lead to good consequences.

As children of God, we have the freedom to choose to follow Jesus and to work for the 'vineyard' of the Gospel. However, God's 'parenting strategy' is a mystery. We cannot fathom the kindness and compassion of God, whose ways are not our ways, nor thoughts our thoughts. The landowner in today's parable chooses to mete out the same rewards to each of his workers. Justice and fairness go beyond any human standards - there is forgiveness and generosity for all.

Yet in our human world, there are so many who face uncertainty, fear, poverty and distress. Sometimes their conditions call for tough choices in order to preserve life and wellbeing for individuals and families. In an ideal world, Pope Francis says, the "decision to migrate should always be free". In reality, many are forced to make choices that are not fair or safe. Like the workers in the vineyard, they take any option that is available.

As a community, we can choose not to judge, but to respond with the generosity of God. We can create spaces of human dignity and flourishing. We can provide welcome, hospitality and means to earn an income. We can show love and build pathways towards hope and healing. We can support those who choose to return. Pope Francis says that “the chance to live in peace and with dignity” is not yet a right, but “must be seen as a shared responsibility”.

As a Church, we are moving forwards together on a synodal journey. It is a rediscovery of listening to the Holy Spirit within our structures as we live the Gospel as a pilgrim people. We are called to make good choices that will lead to good consequences. In the end, however, we have to trust in the mystery of God’s ways.

We are children of God, and we place ourselves in God’s hands. As do those who make difficult choices about whether to migrate or to stay. Whatever happens, our communities are free to choose how to respond. Will our actions show that God’s greatness cannot be measured?

Introduction

Leader:

Today we come together for the World Day of Refugees and Migrants. This year, Pope Francis wants us to think about the choices we have in life. Have a look at our prayer focus, and imagine that these are your shoes.

Everyone wants to be safe, healthy and happy. But some people need to make a choice about the best place for their family. Sometimes people decide to travel to another country or another part of the country. Others decide to stay at home even when it is difficult or to return to their homes. We want everyone to be free to choose the best place for a good life. Let us begin with an Acknowledgement of Country.

Reader 1: We acknowledge the people who have cared for this special sacred land for thousands of generations. We thank them for providing safety for families and communities. We pray that we can show our respect by helping life to grow for all of God's people and creation.

HAD JESUS NOT COME, WHAT WOULD WE HAVE BEEN!

Had Jesus not come, what would we have been!
What a mess we would be, if he didn't come
May Jesus be praised!

To whom would we have belonged
The devil would have crushed all of us
But thanks to Jesus, we are free now!

We would all have been in disarray
We would have been damned for our sinfulness
But Jesus saved us!

We would have groped in the darkness of sin
We would have died, sinners
But Jesus gave us the light of salvation!

We would have been totally condemned
But he came to our rescue
And we are forever grateful!

The Catholic Alliance for People Seeking Asylum (CAPSA)'s National Week of Prayer and Action

Freedom to Live

Each year, CAPSA runs a National Week of Prayer and Action and celebrates World Day of Migrants and Refugees to engage the Australian Catholic community across schools, organisations and parishes, to take-action and stand in solidarity with people seeking asylum.

The theme of CAPSA's National Week of Prayer and Action will focus on the freedom to live for refugees and people seeking asylum in Australia. Having the freedom to live means the freedom to be able to plan your life, to be with reunited your family, freedom to live in safety and have predictability and certainty about your future, and the freedom to have choice over your own life.

National Week of Prayer and Action this year will run from Monday 4th September to Friday 8th September 2023. The 109th World Migrant and Refugee Sunday will be celebrated on Sunday 24th September 2023.

Our key areas of focus will concentrate on what we can do to create a community where refugees and people seeking asylum have the freedom to live. These include:

- What having the freedom to live means for refugees and people seeking asylum
- Reflecting on the current challenges faced by refugees and people seeking asylum, and barriers that they face for them to live in freedom,
- How we can support refugees in our own communities, and
- What are the steps we can all take to advocate for issues affecting the lives of refugees and people seeking asylum and for them to be able to live in freedom

Our celebrations and events will be based on different ways that we can support and positively impact the lives of refugees and people seeking asylum through prayer, reflection, action and advocacy.

109TH

WORLD DAY OF MIGRANTS & REFUGEES

Every year, The Archdiocese of Adelaide celebrate World Day of Migrants and Refugees with Holy Mass at St Francis Xavier Cathedral at 2.30pm, on the fourth Sunday in September.

This annual multicultural Mass is a very important celebration for our church communities in Adelaide and consequently is live-streamed.

The theme chosen by Pope Francis for the celebration this year is:

“FREE TO CHOOSE WHETHER TO MIGRATE OR TO STAY”

You are ALL INVITED to join Archbishop Patrick O’Regan at this special Mass.

Migrant and Refugee Sunday is a day to celebrate interculturalism in your parish!

Each one of us bring our faith, our culture and our gifts to the eucharistic table – this day is a day to celebrate our diversity but mostly our unity!

You might encourage a special celebration in your own parish this Migrant and Refugee Sunday by using some of these ideas;

- Link up with your local multicultural community
 - Share/display your migrant stories
 - Share a multicultural meal
- Invite a community member to share their migration story as a 5-7 minute reflection
- Display a map of the world showing the rich cultural heritage of your parish community
- Gather in a small group for prayer and reflection with links to relevant prayer resources

Come join us for ice cream and coffee after Mass!

Lets make Migrant and Refugee Sunday a celebration of God’s Kingdom, together as one:

LEARNING – LIVING – CELEBRATING – UNITED – VALUED – LOVED

MIGRANT AND REFUGEE SUNDAY RESOURCES FOR PARISHES AND COMMUNITIES

REACH OUT BEYOND YOUR WALLS

Connect with a local Catholic Migrant Chaplaincy or Community and celebrate Mass and or a meal together. See the Diocesan Directory under resources for Catholic Migrant and Cultural Communities on the Multicultural Office website:

www.adelaide.catholic.org.au/our-works-and-community/catholic-multicultural-office

COLLECT THE STORIES OF YOUR COMMUNITY

Ask individuals and families both recent arrivals and longtime residents, to share their stories.

- Stories could be collected in written form, as a poster, powerpoint slides or as a video.
- Choose a time and place when these stories could be shared (e.g. a reflection after communion at Mass; at a gathering after Mass; hang posters in the Church foyer or other appropriate spaces.)

BREAK BREAD TOGETHER

Host an international banquet and invite members of your community to bring a dish that represents their home country or culture.

FRATELLI TUTTI

Gather a group of interested people from the parish and neighbouring communities to study Pope Francis' encyclical Fratelli Tutti. Several group study guides are available online at Garrett Publishing.

CELEBRATE LANGUAGE

Incorporate the native languages of the members of your parish community in the celebration of Mass. This can be done at the Prayers of the Faithful, or invite people to pray the Lord's Prayer in their first language. It can be messy, but so was the first Pentecost!

MAP IT OUT

Hang a world map on a corkboard in a visible spot and invite parishioners to place a pin in their home country or city. You could even connect a piece of string to the pin and on the other end of the string fix a photo or a Post-It note with your name written on it.

PRAY WITH POPE FRANCIS

At Mass, pray together Pope Francis' prayer for Migrant and Refugee Sunday. This can be found at the end of his message for the 109th World Day of Migrants and Refugees:

<https://migrants-refugees.va/>

SHARE THE MESSAGE

Make copies of Pope Francis' message for the 109th World Day of Migrants and Refugees available. Maybe set up a study group opportunity for people to come together to read the letter and discuss its meaning and impact for their parishes and communities.
